

America and the world has come to recognize the importance of bio-threats, whether intentional or naturally developing. Our preparedness for these challenges is limited and we risk finding ourselves vulnerable with inadequate public health policies and a lack of drugs and safety measures.

Join with leading professionals from the medical, bioscience and education communities as we discuss:

Preparing for Bio-Threats: Emerging and Re-emerging Infectious Diseases

With Participation from:

*Donna Ambrosino, Massachusetts
Biologic Laboratory, University of Massachusetts Medical School*

Gerald Beltz, Harvard Medical School

Jay Berzofsky, National Cancer Institute, National Institutes of Health

Charles Cantor, Sequenom, Boston University

Charles DeLisi, Boston University

Donald Henderson, Center for Civilian Biodefense Strategies

Gerald Keusch, Boston University

Mark Klempner, Boston University

Bruce Levin, Emory University

Adel Mahmoud, Merck Vaccine Division

Fred Sparling, UNC Chapel Hill

Saul Tzipori, Tufts University

Boston University School of Management
595 Commonwealth Avenue | Boston, Massachusetts

Wednesday, December 14, 2005

8:30 am – 6:00 pm

Made Possible by the Support of Merck Research Laboratories-Boston

Please RSVP on or before December 1, 2005 by calling 1-800-649-1070 or e-mail buevent@therendongroup.com

c/o The Rendon Group | 44 Bromfield Street, 8th Floor | Boston, MA 02108